

Dr. Ken Cruikshank
Dean of Humanities

A MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

Welcome to our annual Awards Assembly. I am glad that you accepted our invitation to join in this celebration of the achievements of some of our outstanding students.

For those we are honouring with awards today, congratulations. This assembly is a way for McMaster University and the Faculty of Humanities to thank you publicly for bringing energy, excitement and wonder to our classrooms, laboratories, performance spaces, and art studios. It is our way of thanking you publicly for leading by example, setting ambitious goals and high standards for yourself that inspire your fellow students to work harder and think more deeply.

As students in the Faculty of Humanities, we have challenged you to engage in critical, ethical and constructive enquiry, to reflect upon your values, and to work with and understand those who look at the world in very different ways. We have challenged you to develop persuasive arguments that are grounded in evidence, and to communicate complex and challenging ideas. We have challenged you to respond creatively to the world of ideas, and the world around you.

We have challenged you to develop the skills you will need to be the leaders in our communities, and in communities around the world. We have challenged you to develop the skills to be the passionate, tolerant and rational agents of change that our world so desperately needs. And you have met those challenges.

For those of you who were invited to witness this event, be you family, friends, faculty or staff, congratulations. Many of you are here for that special moment when one individual crosses the stage. I strongly suspect that this is not the first time that you have offered moral and practical support, and so, when that special moment comes, please know that we are honouring you as well.

Many of these awards are made possible by or in memory of individuals who are or were just like you, who shared your passion for learning and discovery. Today, we honour their wish that we recognize excellence and leadership.

If you are crossing the stage today, please remember that at the same time as we are celebrating your recent achievements, we are also celebrating the future. This assembly is our way of saying that we believe that you will continue to write well, think deeply and critically, and recognize and create beauty as you continue your journey through university and through life. You will continue to lead by example.

I am proud to share in this celebration of achievement, and of promise. Savour this moment, and look forward to a bright future. Congratulations.

Dr. Anna Moro
Associate Dean of Humanities

A MESSAGE FROM THE ASSOCIATE DEAN

Welcome to this year's Faculty of Humanities Awards Assembly! These honours reflect your hard work, dedication, and scholarship. Take pride in what you have accomplished. We know that being a successful student does not happen accidentally: Excellence is the result of a sustained commitment to one's studies, of careful attention to details, and of deliberate efforts to attain high standards in one's work. Congratulations on your accomplishments. And enjoy the celebrations!

Some of the awards announced today constitute a special bond between the past and present, between current students and often unknown benefactors; these awards have been made possible thanks to donations to the students of McMaster, given in memory of a loving father or mother, a cherished professor and colleague, or perhaps a fellow student. I encourage recipients of named awards to take a moment to reflect upon the generosity behind the award.

Congratulations again on your achievements. I wish you continued success.

Dr. Bonny Ibhawoh
Associate Dean, Graduate Studies & Research

A MESSAGE FROM THE ASSOCIATE DEAN (GRADUATE STUDIES AND RESEARCH)

I am delighted to welcome you to this year's Humanities Award Ceremony. This ceremony is a celebration of academic achievement and recognition of our students as future leaders in the various careers opened up by liberal arts education.

The Faculty of Humanities strives to provide opportunities for undergraduate students to enhance their research and learning experience by working with their professors on research projects. Our goal is to integrate our students into faculty research as a way of training them to become independent researchers and producers of knowledge. The McMaster Undergraduate Student Research Awards provide students with an opportunity of full-time research-based activity in the summer. These Awards are student-initiated and allow students to take their studies beyond the classroom in innovative and exciting ways. The goal is to cultivate and support research partnerships between faculty members and undergraduate students.

The Humanities Award Ceremony is also a celebration of community engagement and global citizenship. As Nelson Mandela once said, "education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world." Our award winners today include recipients of Community Contribution Awards and Travel Awards. Community and global engagement enrich students' learning experience. An internship with a community organization or participation in a Study Abroad Program can be a life transforming experience for students. Recognizing this, the Faculty of Humanities offers students the opportunity to study in a different country, gain a new perspective on life and increase their global awareness, while working towards their McMaster degree. All these make a liberal arts education at McMaster a unique academic and life-learning experience. By their commitment to learning, research and community service our awards winners represent the best of the McMaster liberal arts tradition. Congratulations to the award winners and to their families.

The University Senate, acting on behalf of generous benefactors and donors to the University, bestows academic awards on entering, in-course and graduating students to encourage and recognize high levels of scholarship. In recognizing such scholastic achievement, the University requires all recipients of academic awards to fulfill a set of general conditions in addition to meeting the particular terms attached to individual academic awards. The general conditions and terms have been established to ensure equity in competition and a high academic standing.

The following students are to be congratulated as winners of academic awards and/or being named to the Deans' Honour List.

THE FACULTY MACE

Dr. Théodore Arcand, '57 (Hons.. B.A. in History), '95 (LL.D), designed and commissioned an academic mace for the Faculty of Humanities in memory of his wife, Jennifer '57 (Hons.. B.A. in English). Made of solid silver and plated with gold, the Mace was crafted by Quebec artisan, Marker Markarian.

Ceremonial maces in university faculties have been used since the 13th century. Examples of maces in arts faculties include the universities of Vienna, Heidelberg, Prague, Saint Andrews, Paris, Padua and many others. The McMaster Humanities Mace is, we believe, the first such object in Canada, allowing it to be another appropriate emblem of the country's most innovative university. The Faculty Mace is used in appropriate Faculty ceremonies and processions. The Mace is carried by a Faculty Bedel or, in his or her absence, the Pro-Bedel. The Bedel and Pro-Bedel are the longest and the second-longest serving members of the Faculty.

The Faculty Mace is rich in symbolism and incorporates a number of pieces of Jennifer Arcand's jewellery. It consists of three parts, the first being a pine cone filial which surmounts a crown-like form made up of six bands of acanthus leaves. This form encloses a central stem bearing a silver-gilt hat pin of Austro-Hungarian origin, decorated with three small rubies and an emerald, depicting a pelican slashing its breast to feed its young, a symbol of sacrifice. On a triangular gold mount there are fixed three pins of Hungarian origin. The first is partly enamelled in white and red and on a cross-like form holds a green stone engraved with a male arm bearing a sword. At each of the extremities of the cross, there is mounted a garnet. In addition, there are three larger garnet pendants. The second pin is an enamel depicting Saint George slaying the dragon. At each of the extremities of the cross, there is mounted a pearl. In addition, there are three pearl pendants on the lower part of the pin. The third pin is richly enamelled in blue, white and green. A blue enamelled panel surrounded by a white arch bears a small diamond set in a triangular gold setting (the eye of God). At either side, there are female supporters and, at the base, a putto. The top of the arch is embellished by a small emerald, and the bottom, by two small garnets, two pearls and a faceted crystal. The first point of the triangular framework bears an Indian diamond ring (eight small diamonds around a small emerald, surrounded by an oval gold setting). The next point bears an oval amethyst pin set within a band of ten Ceylon pearls. The third point bears a second century Roman onyx seal, engraved with the figure of Pallas Athene wearing a helmet and bearing a spear and shield.

The next portion of the Mace consists of six oval laurel crowns set on a circle, which in turn bears six intertwined bands of olive leaves. In between each of these bands is set a coat of arms. They are as follows: Canada, the City of Hamilton, the Arcand coat of arms, the Province of Ontario, McMaster University, the Arcand Bassi-Sertorio arms.

The third portion of the Mace consists of a solid silver column embellished by a spiralling band of acanthus leaves. In between the band, the following text is engraved: "In loving memory of Jennifer Marjorie Arcand from her husband, Théodore Arcand, her son Jean-Louis Arcand and daughter-in-law, Francesca Bassi Arcand, October 1997".
